Friday 7th March, 2025.

David went to physio.

I spent the morning getting my writing homework done.

In the afternoon, we both have our classes and then we went to the free language class, about the weather.

Saturday 8th March, 2025.

We caught a Tuktuk to Angkor supermarket (both ways).

In the evening, we walked in to town to go to Jungle Burgers for tea. They have a meal deal, the burger, chips and a drink starting from $6.99 (depending on your burger. There is a large range! ) I can't quite finish the burger and chips (and beer)!

Sunday 9th March, 2025.

A quiet day at home, but in the evening, we walked in to town again for tea, this time to Khmer Taste. It is very popular with tourists. Several restaurants within touting distance try to compete but just can't.

Monday March 10th, 2025.

Temple Day: South Gate to Prasat Chrung SW.

We decided to go for a walk along the wall today, stepping up the walking for David.

We met one of our language school friends (walking her dog).

The causeway over the moat to the South Gate (Tonle Om).

A skink. He was quite yellow under his chin.

Harder to spot are the little garden lizards. They drop off the branches and scuttle away.

More dragonflies are about now.
There are more butterflies too, but they are very skitish.

You can hire a gondola and go punting along the south section of the moat.

In the afternoon, we caught a Tuktuk in to Sister Srey for coffee with some expat Aussies who live in Bali, but who are thinking of relocating to Siem Reap. It was good to exchange ideas and interesting to hear of their likes about Bali, and their reasons for changing retirement cities.

Tuesday 11th March, 2025.

David went to physio. At this visit, he was told it was his last visit, but to keep up the exercises.

Wednesday 12th March, 2025.

David went to Anjali.

I cleaned the house and then walked into town to get my nails done. $5 to have the extensions removed and $4 for a manicure and polish (much more manageable length).
