

Part 3 Europe 2025 for Cathy's blog

Sunday 6th April, 2025.

We were up for breakfast again at 7:00. We are sleeping later though.

Today we are off to the Roman Museum. The history of Cologne and the Dom begin in the 800's, but before then, Cologne was a Roman city. It was named after Colonia Agrippa. (Some of) The Roman artefacts are on display at the Belgian House.

They include busts of the important Romans in Cologne.

A bust of Hadrian.

And the Romans played games not unlike our present day games.

They had stained glass too.

Down at this end of town, we found the Little Three Kings Gate, which is the gate the relics of the Three Wise Men were carried through and into Cologne.

Most of the shops are shut on Sunday's, including the laundromat. David booked us into a local “pub” where he had schnitzel again and I had brisket (in horseradish sauce and potatoes, with beetroot on the side).

To get to our tea venue, we walked up river and found
St Kuniberts.

St. Kuniberts.

There are an interesting selection of carvings on this door of St. Kuniberts.
