

Part 271 for Cathy's blog

Thursday June 5th and Friday 6th June, 2025

Thursday June 5th, 2025.

Temple Day : walk North Gate (Dey Chhnang) to Prasat
Chrung NE.

Today is mushroom day along this section of the wall.

And some pretty flowers.

The first of these ground orchids for this year.

A weather worn apsara dancing on Prasat Chrung, NE.

We met some fellow walkers (we quite often do) and we learned a bit about our friend, the dog.

They call him “Guido” = guide. He walks with them because they feed him chicken and boiled eggs! He is two years old and he lives at the West Gate.

These walkers walk the entire wall (12km!) (but not every day).

Guido and family.

At language class today, I learned “passive voice”. Past present and future tense. Useful when reporting the news (or writing science practical reports!).

Friday 6th June, 2025.

Temple Day : Short walk today : Victory Gate to Prasat
Chrung NE.

We say this beautiful fungus today.

There were gibbons close by, maybe even in the trees above the path.

I like this dragonfly's white legs.

Significant earth works north of the causeway over the moat at the Victory Gate.

There was time at home to get my “listening” homework done before lunch and then class in the afternoon. Once home from school on a Friday, the weekend begins.

